

Conference Venue

CM2018 will be held at the monumental site Lijm & Cultuur, the former gelatine factory of Delft. This industrial complex is used today for cultural festivals and activities, but in this case it will be the location for the 11th edition of the Conference of Contact Mechanics. The historical buildings still have their original facades, creating an unique atmosphere right along the water front of Delftse Schie and right next to the TU Delft campus.

Scientists and Engineers from universities, research institutes and the industry all around the world, along with participants from the private sector, public agencies and graduate students will gather to share, interact and explore current developments as well as the future needs for contact mechanics of rail-wheel systems.

With a record of abstract submissions representing Europe, Asia, Northern America, Australia, Southern America and Africa, this edition will be the largest in the already rich history of the CM-series.

The conference theme is 'Connecting science and practice towards future rail-wheel interaction'. To underline this we will introduce an award, together with the CM2018 Diamond Partner, granting a selected paper that contributes towards this theme.
